my duty to my client was paramount to my "duty-as Commissioner of the State of New-York, a question involving Constitutional principles." in general will be read by the same persons, and there is not a word in it to justify or excuse their assertion. I did not thus argue. I claimed that I had two duties to perform, and that I performed both. I never claimed that my duty to my State was subordinate to any other duty whatever. When my associates assert that their Chairman left the Convention "with full knowledge of the effect of his absence on the vote about to be taken," if they mean that I knew or supposed that they intended to reverse their own action, or that Mr. King would not announce the vote as it had been resolved, or would leclare the vote divided, or that they would support him in it, or that the Convention would overrule the delegation, then they assert what they could not know to be true, and what is not true in fact. My note sets forth what I was told, and what I replied.

But what shall I say of the following sentences: It Nor is the opinion of Mr. Field entitled to considers tion, when he imputes to the majority a want of fidelity to him, in not claiming and adhering to the vote which had been taken when all were present, and which was afterward rendered null by his absence. They did adhere to it, and endeavored to cast the vote coordingly. It was his duty to have been present, and to have thus given effect to that which had been prevously agreed to." Would any one imagine that the ors were speaking of a vote, given in expectation of my absence, and to determine what should be done when I was away? The vote was taken because I was to be absent, and directed the Chairman how to not in that event; but it is nevertheless pretended that the moment I became absent, the vote became null.

They might better have said that the vote would have become null, or rather that there would have been no occasion for it in case of my continued presence. Then they say that they adhered to it. How did they ad-The resolution directed the Chairman to cas the vote in the negative. He did not obey the resolution. His associates and mine did not insist that be should. Nobody prevented his answering No, when the vote was called. No reason has ever been given for his not so answerir g. That he should instead have entered voluntarily into a discussion with Mr. Tyler on the subject, and that his associates should have looked quietly on, can only be accounted for by supposing them indifferent or bewildered.

It is not agreeable to write thus of old friends; but I must defend myself when attacked, and defense canhot always be made pleasant to an assailant. My late friends profess to think me responsible for the loss of the vote of New-York on a certain occasion.

I think them responsible for it. Which side is right the Legislature and the people of the State will judge.

A PATRIOTIC LETTER.

A PATRIOTIC LETTER.

From The Falladelptia Press, April 12.

The following letter, which the editor of The Press, now in Washington, has received, speaks for heelf. It is from the pen of an officer in the army, well known in Philadelphia, lately located in Texas, and belonging to that portion of the army betrayed and sold out by the infamous Twiggs. It appears that his name was confounded with another person named Reynolds, a Quartermaster, who followed Twiggs. We happen to know that our old friend was offered by the Texas rebels a high position in their service. He Baid: "I cannot disgrae the high obligations I owe to the Government whose uniform I have the honor to wear." Would that others, who wear that uniform, could be

Would that others, who went that uniform, could be minusted by the same high and manly spirit! Dosuch men recollect that in resigning their commissions they are taking the position of avoiding the responsibility of a fight—unless, indeed, while doing so, they join the Disunionists? No doubt The New York Times fell into an error in regard to Captain Reynolds, which it will gladly correct:

SAN ANTONIO, Texas, March 23, 1861.

DEAR COLONEL: I observe in an issue of The N. Y.
Times a most illiberal and unjust attack upon me, in come-don with the transfer of the public property in this place, founded on a paragraph in one of the newspapers here. With the transfer I had nathing to do; it was the work of my superiors, in which I had no voice; yet I was violently opposed to the entire transaction as an unwarrantable seizure of the public property, and I, as well as the other officers, have had to unfer the mortification and disgrace attending it. The report in regard to me was based upon a street rumor, confounding me partly with another.

The Times has seen fit to drag up old matters which have long since been honorably settled, The Times being one of the first papers to indorse and approve the action of the tribunal which rendered me justice. I have neither resigned nor taken service in Texas, nor had to be a superior of the public property in the public property is then my intention to do so. Although born

INSURANCE ON SHIPMENT OF CORN.

Edmund Savage agt. The Corn Eschauge Fire and Inland Navigation Insurance Company.

In 1854 the plaintiff, as common carrier, effected an insurance with defeadants on two eargoes of corn, to be shipped from Buffalo to Albany on the canal bests, Fisice and Chipmen, to Albany, and from there to New York, on the lake-boat Hudson.

The quantity of corn contained in both cargoes, and alipped at Albeny was 7,100 bushels. The Hudson, on her way to New-York, is the tow of the steaming Suratogs, when near Statis Docks, whe (as plaintiff claimed) run upon a rock and so much intered that she was left at Castleton, where she grounded on the night of the 1st, 1854. Defendants agents subsequently tok charge of the corn, and on the Wodnesday following commenced to remove it from the Hudson. With the exception of about 720 bushels, the corn was all damaged. The defendants set up that the plaintiff, when ne obtained the insurance made misr-presentations as to the attempt, safety and structure of the Hudson that she was too heavily laden; book an improper and dangerous position in the tow in spite of the remonstrances of the captain of the steaming Baratogs, and that the Hudson was totally unseaworthy.

The defendants claimed that the greater part of the damage might have been prevented by the use of proper diligence on the part of plaintiff, segents after the accident occurred. The case was tried ones before in January, 1857, and a verdict given in favor of the plaintiff, which was subsequently set saide. The present trial occupied eight days, and the jury rendered a verdict for the full amount claimed, $5,431.76.

The People ex.rel. the Parker Mills agt the Commissioners of Taxes, &c.

The Parkef Mills is a corporation carrying on the manufacturing of nells in Massachusetts and khode Island, and was created by act of the Legislature of the former State. It whole capital is invested in said State, and the nells there manufactured are entirely completed and packed for market there. It has no capital invested in this State, but it has a depot in this city where their manufactures are received and sold, the proceeds being sent to Massachusetts. In 1939 the Tax Commissioners assessed the Parker Mills on $42,000 but after an examination of the agent of the corporation reduced it to $19,000. The Court below held that under the act of February, 1835, they were label to assessment, the act providing that non-residents and foreign corporations delay business in this State should be taxed on all sums invested in any masser in the business, the same as if they were invested in this State. The appellants take the ground that the act of 1855 did not contemplate taxing capital in another State, but was intended to correct an abuse of the rule that personal property should be taxed at the place of residence or domicile of the owner. The object was to impose a tax upon capital ectually and permanently invested in husiness in this State although its owner resided in another State. Case argued and decision reserved.

COMMON PLEAS—TRIAL TREE—APRIL 12—Before Judge HILTON.

In Junuary, 1860, plaintiff left with defendant, as a banking and collection broker, a draft for collection. The plaintiff sued him for the amount of the draft, it baving been lost.
Defendant admitted the receipt of the draft and proves that he mailed it to his agents, responsible bankers in St. Louis, the place where it was payable. He also proved that he kept copy of the letter inclosing the draft, and that scording to custom remittance by mail was the usual mode, and that the draft by evidence, under commission, was never received by his agents.
The judge submitted to the jury the question whether defendant was chargeable with negligence for the manner in which he forwarded ine draft for collection, and if so, what damage had the plaintiff sustained? The jury found in favor of the defendant.

NEW-GRANADA.

Frem the Panema Star, April 1.

On the morning of March 26, at 6 a.m., the town of Buenavectura was statacked by a party of between 400 and 500 liberals, under the command of Col. Penrosa. The fight lasted until 3 p. m. The Government forces were foot more than 100 strong. Of these 25 retreated on board the Government vessels Clio and Salamandra in the bay, and opened a fire on the town, killing and wounding many innocent residents of the piace.

The larger portion of the Government troops retreated to the cuartel, which was well fortified, being built up with large wooden logs to the second floor, the upper part being faced by plates of boiler iron bolted to the building. Here they took a stand for some time, but the building either having been set on fite by Congreve rockets (as some say), or by order of Sr. Hoyos, who commanded the besieged troops (as others assert) those who attempted to escape from the flances were shot down, and the remainder, from 20 to 35 men, including Sr. Hoyos, perished in the burning ruins.

The Horse Market.

April has generally been one of the best months in the year for the sale of horses, and it will probably prove to be so this year, but very far below some pre vious years in point of numbers sold. For the week ending April 12, we should judge from occasional visits to the great market place in Twenty-fourth street, the trade has been better than any week this year. At least we have seen more buyers in the market than at any previous time, and we noticed from day to day a good many changes in the stalls, which indicate that sales to a considerable extent have been made. The prices, the drovers say, are 25 per cent higher than last good many cases, and a case with have been made. The prices, the drovers say, are 25 per cent higher than last year. This may be the case, with fancy horses, or all that class that sell for $100 or $500 a piece, and perhaps for all that sell for that much a pair, but it is not the case with ordinary work horses, and such as are usually taken by stags and city rainwad men. For instance, the Third Avenue Railroad Company have now in their stables at their great station-house on Third avenue and Staty-furnth and Sixty-fifth streets. We horse, some 50 of which are in the baptias ward mostly with sore feet, occasioned in a great measure, by sailing the snow on the track, and their purchases have been pretty catensive of late, to replace lame horses and those constantly wearing out or becoming sont for the very hard service they have to perform, which is 20 miles every day at the rate of 6 miles on hour, including stops and starts, which make the real hard part of the business. Last year the horses perchased by this company averaged about $115 cach. So far this Spring the purchases average about $115 cach. So far this Spring the purchases average about $115 cach. So far this market. It is 17 the cut instead of 23.

The greatest demand of late has been for a good class of Horses, for farm work, and good enough to take the facily to meeting. Our last which to the market was in company with a friend who wanted a nice pair of horses for his farms, and gented drivers. His preference was a pair of dark colored marce, about 8 year old, 15 hands high, gentle at the plow, and smart a the road. He could find those which answered the description to look, without any warrantee worth a farthing, for $200 to $200 a pair, or a pair with a perfect warrantee for $300. He saw a pair sold at $437. 6 years old, 15 hands, stout built, clean limbs, and sold hat year at $250 or $500 cach.

We found no lack of horses in the street, most of the stables heady very well filled up, and including all grades, from the Caunch Forny at $250 as pair STRANGE STORY .- On Thursday night, about 12 clock, Officer Corwin of the Twentieth Ward conveyed to the Station-House Mr. Thomas Coppins of . 74 Horatio street, who stated that he had been assumited by ruffians in the street. He said that he left home about 8 o'clock in the evening, and on arriving at the corner of Greenwich and West Tweifth streets, he was struck a violent blow on the head by some unknown person, who was behind him. He fel insensible to the pavement, and when he came to bis senses he found himself in the North River. Being a good swimmer, he struck out for the shore, and over ally landed at the foot of Thirty-second street, where he encountered Officer Corwin, and accompanied him to the Station-House. After relieving himself of his story, Mr. Coppins departed. As it was flood tille who he claimed to have found himself in the river, a man in the full possession of his senses and energies would have had little chance of getting ashore. He found his gold watch and other property all safe, so there could have been no attempt to rob him. It is but a few weeks since Mr. Coppins was found in an areaway in Bleecker street in an unconscious condition, and on becoming sensible again, he stated that he had been knocked down by highwaymen, who robbed him o $60, and afterward threw him into the area-way, which was fifteen feet deep. He was seriously injured at that time, but on this last occasion he had no severe wounds about him. There was an abrasion of the skin on the forehead, which had the appearance of having been received by a fall. The police will invertigate the affair.

Hilts, as Lighthouse Keeper, at Throgge Neck, vice R. Sherwood, removed. Richard Ammerman, as Lighthouse Keeper, at Fort Tompkins. Mr. Barney is expected back from Washington to day. Protests continue to be made against the pay-ment of duties under the new tariff, but the matter having been submitted to eminent lawyers, they give an unfavorable opinion as to the protesting parties The basis of the protests is that clause in the Constitution which provides that " all duties, imposts and excises shall be uniform throughout the United States," and " no preference shall be given by any regulation of commerce or revenue to the ports of one State over those of another."

CITY ITEMS.

THE STREETS .- It is a singular fact that no matter how carefully contractors may covenant, nor how strongly they may be bound to do their duty, the people of this city appear to be doomed to endure dirty streets now and forever. One of the plainest provisions of the Hackley contract is that which requires every street in the city to be swept at least once a week, and one of the plainest facts namifest to the people is, that during the two months for which Hackley has drawn pay, he has failed to clean many of the streets even once, much less eight times. The town is dirty beyond endurance. Foulness flies in the air, fifth reeks in the gutters, and dusty abominations cover every person and every thing with a pall of corruption. The contract which Fernando Wood went without his dinner, in his feverish impatience to perfect, before justice could have time to tie his bands, has never been, nor will it ever be carried out. The streets stink with long-accumulated dirt, which has not, and probably never will be removed, while venal officers falsely certify that the work has been done, the contract fulfilled, and the contractor puts his hands deep into the Treasury for his ill-gotten gains. The Hackley swindle is becoming so barefaced that people begin to inquire more closely into the circumstances attending its passage. It is well known that the Board of Aldermen never dared to take up the resolutions of investigation passed by the Councilmen, nor have the latter ventured to make Mountjoy account for the $36,000 which somebody did not get. It is in evidence, we believe, that on the morning of the day on which the iniquity was accomplished, a prominent Director of Mechanics Bank drew $40,000 in bills from the bank. As that gentleman had business relations with Mr. Hackley, it would be interesting to inquire whether he paid that money out for the street cleaning contract, and if so,

DEAD BODY FOUND .- About 4 o'clock, on Thursday afternoon, as Mr. Isaac Dodge, and his little nephew. were fishing in the Bronx River, near Williamsbridge, they discovered something lying on the bottom, near the bank, almost covered with sand and mud, which, on a closer examination proved to be a human body. The Coroner being sent for, it was drawn out, and identified as that of an insune person by the name of John D. Austin, for the recovery of which there appeared, about two months since, in the city papers, an advertisement offering a reward of $100. About this time, his hat being found in the river lodged against a log, and his shirt lying up on the bank, not far from the spot where the body lay, led his friends to believe that he was drowned in the vicinity, or that he perished from the cold in the woods. He was genteelly and fully dressed (excepting his hat and shirt), with his under and overcoat buttoned up to his chin, the collar of the latter turned over his ears.

In his pockets were found a gold watch, chain, a couple of lockets, a purse containing $30 in Boston bank tills, and about $1 in silver; also, a handkerchief and card, on both of which appeared his name. The probability is, that he was drowned near to the spot where the body was discovered; whether accidentally or purposely, may be inferred from two or three circumstances. In the first place, the body lay in but two or three feet of water, and the river, at the deepest (save in a few holes, or during a freshet), will not exceed five feet. And again, before entering the water, he removed his shirt, and adjusted all his clothes, with the exception of his suspenders, which were left hanging down. Although the body was somewhat bloated, from being in the water so long, still, the features appeared quite natural. MINOR CITY ITEMS.—That Spring is coming those testify, even if these fine Spring days were not to be relied upon. A week or two since, strawberries in Taylor's window were labelled "25 cents apiece." In a day or two they fell to $5 per basket; then to $1; and now they are sold at the exceedingly tow price of 75 cents per basket. A few weeks hence and they will go begging for purchasers at the cents The steamship Great Eastern is to sail from this port for Liverpool on the 25th of May next Flags were flying from the City Hall and all the public buildings, and the shipping in the bay was gayly decorated yesterday in honor of the birthday of Henry Clay Alderman Boole will launch the mud scow South Carolina to-day from his yard at Greenpoint. Addresses may be expected from the Rev. R. D. Hitchcock, D. D., the Rev. Charles J. Jones, Capt. Samuel Elliott, and several seamen The Rev. Mr. Walworth has left Troy, N. Y., where he has been pastor of St. Peter's Church, and joined the order of St. Paul the Apostle at Fifty-ninth street, in this city. Before Father Walworth left Troy, the congregation of St. Peter's Church presented him with an elegant gold watch valued at $275, as a token of their esteem for him..... Speaking of the late Joe Taylor's affairs, The Dispatch says: "Taylor's liabilities at the time of his death amounted to somewhere about $150,000, and we never heard of any of his creditors getting a farthing on their claims. It is quite evident that somebody got the benefit of Taylor's gigantic financial operations. We recollect being in the Street Commissioner's office on the day of Taylor's death, when we heard one of his friends lamenting the difficulty in which he would be nvolved by the death of Taylor. He said he was on Taylor's notes for over $40,000. After the personal effects of the late Street Commissioner had been approjeed as I examined, under the direction of the Surrogate, this paper was never again heard of! This man has since that time been considered rich. From being a common laborer, at $2 a day, he has risen to the dignity of a large operator in real estate. Truly there is an unwritten history in this Taylor affair.

MARSHAL RYNDERS .- As far as we recollect, no one of the large number of vessels seized by the Murshal, upon alleged suspicion that they were fitting out for the slave-trade, has been subsequently condemned. It was probably this fact that led the late Collector to adopt the plan of allowing no clearance to be given to vessels suspected of being slavers, instead of the old one of giving the clearance and depending upon the Marshal to make the seizure afterwards. remarkable fact that in the case of vessels with which the Marshal has had anything to do it has been discovered that there was nothing wrong about them, while of the three which were refused a clearance, two, the bark Kate and the bark Weathergage, have been condemned. CENTRAL HOMEOPATHIC DISPENSARY .- From the seventh Annual Report of this Dispensary, which is located at No. 15 East Eleventh street, we learn that during the past year 1,053 cases of various forms of disease were treated, and 2,960 prescriptions given, making a total since the institution was established in 1854 of 6,498 cases treated and 18,303 prescriptions given.
